Dear Friends,

The mission of ELCMA is to "Connect People and Resources for Christ's Ministries in Appalachia." We are often asked, "How can I be a part of this exciting ministry?" There are three primary ways: The first is to pray for ministry in Appalachia; the second is to volunteer your time and your talents; and a third way is to support ELCMA financially.

The Appalseed Program

John Chapman (1774-1845), more familiarly known as Johnny Appleseed, sold or gave apples seeds and seedlings to families migrating westward. He traveled to present-day Ohio from western Pennsylvania sowing apple seeds as he went. For over 40 years Johnny Appleseed wandered the area planting and caring for the seeds he planted. His initial work helped hundreds of settlers establish orchards of their own which continue to bear fruit today.

ELCMA is inviting you to plant an APPALSEED of a different variety with many others that will bear fruit in the ministries of the Appalachian Region in much the same way that Johnny's apple seeds did with settlers and their apple trees. Join together with others committed to the growth of this region and become an APPALSEED today.

YES, I want to be an Appalseed!

As an Appalseed you will:

*assist small congregations in rural, small town and urban settings in spreading the gospel

*help seminary students prepare for their call in Appalachia *connect church and community groups with resources that enhance outreach in their neighborhood

*utilize regional leaders to encourage growth and innovation

*finance projects that would otherwise go unfunded

*enable folks in one part of the region to model effective methods for others doing similar ministries *stretch resources and promote ideas to meet the ever-growing needs in rural, small town and urban ministry

*join with brothers and sisters in and beyond Appalachia following the Holy Spirit to new ways of caring for one another

* be a part of "connecting and enabling God's people for Christ's mission in Appalachia"
